National Law University, Delhi, India

The National Law University, Delhi, established in 2008 by Act No.1 of 2008 of the National Capital Territory of Delhi, is one of the premier law universities in India. The primary mission of the University is to create lawyers who will be professionally competent, technically sound and socially relevant and will not only enter the Bar and the Bench but also be equipped to address the imperatives of the new millennium and uphold the Constitution of India. The University has very good infrastructure in its campus at Sector 14, Dwarka, New Delhi, with all facilities for the best learning and research. The University offers 5-year integrated B.A., LL.B. (Hons), LL.M., Ph.D. and PG Diploma Programmes.

Centre for Law & Urban Development

The Centre for Law & Urban Development (CLUD) at National Law University, Delhi, aims to bring together the students, industries and academia working towards enhancing the understanding and teaching of property, housing, urban development and other related laws. In doing so, the Centre has undertaken a variety of projects and activities, such as the Sustainable Development Goals Series, Research Projects and Publications on relevant topics of prime importance and awareness drives through proactive public initiatives and webinars, amongst a multitude of other projects. These projects are driven towards answering pertinent questions surrounding the existing system within today's society, such as the needs, status and standing of the underprivileged in the urban structure and other such key issues that plague the societies in their current form. In an attempt to offer solutions that are not just viable but also sustainable, pragmatic and stakeholder friendly, CLUD has also undertaken projects in the area of affordable housing to ensure housing for all as a facet of urban planning. At CLUD, we understand that Urban Planning is an all-around and holistic field of study that requires the cooperation of professionals and scholars from diverse fields. This will further our aim to also delve into and attempt to tackle issues such as the impact of climate change on sustainable cities, the prospects of smart cities and the scope of Urban Development in its truest sense from the lens of the United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs).

To further the goals and ambitions of CLUD, we would also collaborate with and work towards initiatives like the NPCC, NBCC, Project AMRUT and the Delhi Development Authority to truly realise the implications of the efforts undertaken and be the change we envision for the future. Presently the Centre is also associated with the Ministry of Panchayati Raj, Government of India towards drafting of the Model Rural Transformation Act, 2023.

Centre for Tax Laws

The Centre for Tax Laws was established in 2018 under the aegis of National Law University, Delhi, to work in the area of tax laws. A robust taxation framework helps in mobilising revenue for governments' welfare commitments and serves as the backbone of a sound economy. As it is only through constant analysis and conversation that civil society stays informed and involved in any area of law, we as academics have instituted this Centre especially for tax laws to bring the academia, industry and government together under a single platform. In the future, we will be interacting with all stakeholders by organising conferences, workshops, seminars, colloquiums, capacity development programs and publications on the current themes and debates reverberating for tax laws.

The Centre also facilitates a high-level research environment where the student community appreciates the significance of tax laws and gets experiential learning from established experts in this field. The Centre also consistently provides policy interventions in the form of comments and feedback to the government, as reforming the taxation laws is high on its agenda. Significantly, as the world is trying to rewrite the old international tax order created in the brick-and-mortar economy for the digital economy, the Centre observes, analyse and contribute to this process to make sure that it stays relevant for the revenue generation needs of an emerging economy like India.

With this broader objective, the Centre is working towards creating a pool of academics, lawyers, researchers, professionals, students and individuals who work in creating, implementing, formulating and analysing the present tax laws at the national and international levels.

The Centre is also branching out in the area of property and real estate laws as they have a great impact on our economy and are undergoing transformation. In future, the Centre also branch out to other areas of economic law and so on to build an interdisciplinary platform.

About the Seminar

Affordable housing for all is the need of the hour to build an inclusive society in 21st century India. The Prime Minister Sh. Narendra Modi had launched a programme, ‘Housing for all by 2023’, whose one of the main goals is to provide affordable housing for the weaker sections of society. Further, the Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana (PMAY) is an initiative of the Government of India that aims to provide affordable housing to the urban poor by 2024. In fact, the government has sanctioned Rupees Eight Billion in the present year as a subsidy. In the EWS and LIG categories, beneficiaries can have an annual income of up to Rs. Six lakhs and a maximum subsidy of 6.5 percent interest subvention can be granted to them. Similarly, under the Prime Minister Awas Yojana (PMAY), the allocation was increased to Rs. 79,000 Crore for 2023. The working of the above programme is not free from challenges, and therefore, the main objective of this seminar is to address both the issues of law and policy in implementing ‘Affordable housing for all’.

The seminar will examine the jurisprudence of ‘property’ to build a normative framework for the seminar to begin with, and later, the constitutional history of property rights will be discussed in detail in the context of India so as to discuss the history of property rights in India. It is essential to know the laws directly affecting the buying, constructing and sale or transfer of ownership of flats and therefore, the challenges faced by Real Estate Industries will be discussed in detail. Sufficient land for subsidised housing is essential, as it will adjust in middle-class budgeting. Easy home loans with subsidised interest rates are the primary requirement for housing for all. In fact, Home Loan Departments, both at national and private banks, provide the whole list of things to be checked, which makes this process very cumbersome. Ease from compliance is also necessary for the success of ‘housing for all’; therefore, the seminar will also discuss the banking rules and regulations affecting affordable housing. Dispute resolution is one area, which needs a good amount of discussion, as the present framework is not very efficient and effective in handling complex Real Estate related disputes. In fact, there is no ‘one’ place to solve all the disputes related to housing, and therefore, the person in distress does not know which authority or court to approach. Consumer Protection Act, 2019 covers disputes related to the deficiency in services to consumers, but a victim can also approach the civil court in this regard. Therefore, one dedicated sub-theme is on dispute resolution only.

Glimpses of 1st National Seminar, 2019

The first edition of the National Seminar on “Affordable Housing: Building Inclusive Society for the 21st Century India” was held from October 18-19, 2019. In the inaugural session of the Seminar on 18th October 2019, the Book “Affordable Housing: Building Inclusive Society for the 21st Century India” duly edited by Dr. Jasper Vikas, Dr. Prem Chand and Ms. Preeti Lakhera was released by Hon’ble Justice Ms. Deepa Sharma, then Vice Chancellor, NLUDELHI, Prof. Ranbir Singh, and Prof. Rajat Ray, then Dean, University School of Architecture and Planning, GGSIPU, New Delhi. The book is divided into eight parts covering twenty research papers.

Objectives

The objectives of this National Seminar is thus to understand the policy and other aspects including the structural and functional dynamics of affordable housing.
